KRISTIN LANGEDYKE

Kristin was raised in rural Soda Springs, where she acquired an appetite for enjoying Idaho's beautiful outdoors from her father, and an intrigue in science from her mother. Kristin is a renaissance woman with many hobbies including rock climbing, hiking, fishing, reading, art, video-gaming, model-building, and even making chainmail and blacksmithing. Being a polymath steered her to a broad array of academic subjects and nurtured her passion for anatomy, physiology, pathology, philosophy, art, literature, and anything that pertains to human nature. She always jokes that if she could, she'd get a degree in "Everything Human".

Kristin attended Idaho State University where she obtained her Bachelor of Science in Biology with a concentration in Biomedical Sciences. During her education, she apprenticed in the cadaver lab at Idaho State University for several years and shadowed Pathologists and Pathologist Assistants at St. Luke's Hospital. Her ultimate career goal is to be a PathA and perform autopsies.

Kristin is currently an Epidemiologist for Southeastern Idaho Public Health, serving 8 counties in Idaho. She is honored and excited to serve her community in a new way at Bingham County as a Deputy Coroner.
